A New Normal: FlyHealthy@SEA

The COVID-19 global pandemic forced massive shifts in our lives. We now expect different behavior from each other and new protocols from businesses to protect our health.

We're living in a new normal. Your safety, health and well-being are our priority, always. As part of FlyHealthy@SEA, a few things will be different the next time you travel. We require face coverings, escalated cleaning and disinfecting, implemented physical distancing, and added touchless technologies.

Our team at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport (SEA) is ready for the incremental increases in air travel now and to come. We currently forecast being down 61 percent this year, but we know a busier terminal and better times are ahead.

Passenger Trends Show Gradual Return

The number of passengers are going up at SEA, especially heading into the July 4th holiday weekend. More travelers will pass through SEA in the coming weeks as summer travel increases. We expect to see more than 20,000 departing passengers on same days before the holiday weekend. That's in comparison to only 2,500 per day during the low point of the COVID-19 crisis in March and an average of more than 13,000 per day just last week. See our latest airport activities dashboard update here. This is still considerably fewer than what was seen last year with peak days over 68,000 passengers per day – or more than 65% below normal traffic levels.
